2. CONTEXT

Aberdeenshire Educational Psychology Service provides a psychological service to a 0 – 25 years of age population of around 70,000. The service aims to bring psychology to the heart of learning and teaching, working with others to improve life experiences and outcomes for all children and young people. A key objective is to support the professional development and capacity of staff in educational establishments to build their skills and confidence in meeting learners' needs and raising attainment and achievement.

The service saw Carron Douglas appointed to the post of Principal Educational Psychologist in January 2018 and Ashley McGregor as Depute Principal Psychologist in March 2018.

The service continues to face some challenges around recruitment of staff.

3. METHOD OF ASSESSMENT

The assessment was undertaken in two stages; the first was a review of your self-assessment submission. This review enabled the assessor to gain an understanding of how the organisation has met the requirements of the Customer Service Excellence standard.

The next stage was to review the actual service delivered on-site. This was conducted through reviewing practice as well as speaking to staff, partners and customers. This included following customer journeys through your processes and how these aligned with customer insight.

During the assessment process, the criteria are scored on a four-band scale:

COMPLIANCE PLUS - Behaviours or practices which exceed the requirements of the standard and are viewed as exceptional or as exemplar to others, either within the applicant's organisation or the wider customer service arena.

COMPLIANT - Your organisation has a variety of good quality evidence which demonstrates that you comply fully with this element. The evidence which reflects compliance is consistent throughout and is embedded in the culture of the organisation.

PARTIAL COMPLIANCE - Your organisation has some evidence but there are significant gaps. The gaps could include:

- Parts of the applicant's organisation which are currently not compliant and/or
- Areas where the quality of the evidence is poor or incomplete and/or
- Areas which have begun to be addressed and are subject to significant further development and/or
- Areas where compliance has only been evident for a very short period of time

NON COMPLIANT - Your organisation has little or no evidence of compliance or what evidence you do have refers solely to a small (minor) part of your organisation.

The current scheme allows applicants a maximum number of partial compliances, equating to a pass mark of 80% for all criteria.

4. OPENING MEETING

The on-site assessment commenced with an opening meeting.

The assessment activity and the partial compliances were discussed. The itinerary had been agreed with Aberdeenshire Educational Psychology Service in advance. The organisation was informed that all information obtained during the assessment would be treated as strictly confidential.

7. OBSERVATIONS

Areas for Improvement cleared from the previous assessment visit

- You have consulted stakeholders on your standards. You sought their views on their expectations regarding the nature, content and response times of your reports following consultations (4.1.3)

During the site assessment the following general observations were made. These include: positive areas scored as Compliance Plus; areas of good practice; areas for improvement identified throughout the entire assessment process, as listed below.

Areas for Improvement

- You should continue to progress the review and further development of your information provision. As part of this process you are including such as minority ethnic group representation to take account of cultural, language and other issues (3.2.3)

Areas of Good Practice

- You continue to review the opportunities for consulting and engaging with customers using methods that are effective and reliable. You now include customers and other stakeholders more in the planning, delivery and evaluation of your work. This was evidenced during this assessment visit and confirmed in discussion with customers and partners. Your customer journeys also evidenced this
- You publicise satisfaction levels for all customer groups and parts of your service delivery. You do this through the publication of survey results and informal consultation feedback on your website
- You review satisfaction levels over time to identify any trends that require action and to evaluate success. This is done routinely through the Review and Planning process with schools and the parent/ stakeholder survey
- Your customers noted the significant impact of the Educational Psychology Service in assisting them to meet their objectives
- You review the nature and content of your information on a regular basis to ensure it is easily accessible in terms of the complexity of language used and so forth. You have made changes to information on Visible Learning and 'Nurturing' to make these more accessible to many parties. You also took account of feedback from your Cognitive Skills training and simplified information to improve accessibility. These changes were well received by customers. You are currently working to review and streamline your Service Level Agreements with schools
- Your core consultation methods and ethos ensure that your work is founded upon the needs and preferences of customers and these are reviewed on an ongoing basis both in terms of teachers, parents/ carers and young people. The service is customer focused and uses high levels of insight to understand the evolving needs and preferences of a range of customers
- During this assessment, the Assessor saw evidence of the co-creation of an online course on Sensory Needs taking account of input from colleagues in Social Work, the NHS and Education Service. This demonstrated staff using their insight, the direct insight of customers and partners to directly influence 'product' development

- You have researched how other services in Scotland deliver an Educational Psychology Service to secondary schools and are currently inviting stakeholder comments to inform a review of your delivery to secondary schools. This is a good example of learning from others and consulting with customers to inform future service developments. You will also seek the views of your staff and their insight as part of this exercise
- You have continued to give thought as to how to measure 'added value' resulting from your services in many ways. One example of this being a more longitudinal assessment and evaluation of the effectiveness of your training delivery and other interventions. An example of this work was given at this assessment. During and after your training course delivery you look for customer feedback. You conduct post-training and follow-up evaluations and then support participants in their workplaces where appropriate. You then measure the outcomes achieved and the impact of your training and development interventions over the longer term
- There is an embedded, sustained, long-term and clear ethos of continuous improvement and customer focus throughout your service. You adopt a learning organisation approach and culture which assists with ongoing innovation. This is driven by Senior Management
- The Assessor noted throughout the assessment visit that staff are empowered and encouraged to use their professional knowledge and ideas and to participate in the customer focused culture of your organisation. Staff are empowered as both individuals and as groups. You support collegiate development and reflective practice. The use of supervision triads and peer review through such as Video Enhanced Reflective Practice are examples of this
- At this assessment, you provided evidence of a structured induction process which is informed and refined using feedback from participants
- You continue to provide probationer and continuous professional development training in line with the needs of professional bodies and academic institutions where appropriate. Continuous Professional Development (CPD) and involvement in such as active research is encouraged and supported. This is also used to develop good practice and to evaluate the service being delivered. At this assessment, you evidenced staff involvement as a tutor on the MSc course at the University of Dundee, editorial roles in journals and publications in research journals

- You are working effectively with partners both within the Council and externally to evaluate and develop services in a more holistic way to provide a more seamless service and support for customers. Examples included the development of the Sensory Needs training course and e-learning course with NHS and Social Work colleagues
- To assist in their personal development and support the wider community you have sponsored two staff to visit Rwanda in Summer 2018 as part of a wider Aberdeenshire Council Education visit
- You have recently reviewed the use of a Corporate PRD system and established a more relevant system including supervision systems to support staff development and better evaluate customer focus

Areas of Compliance Plus

- 1.1.1 You continue to evidence and demonstrate a very in-depth awareness and understanding of the characterises of current and potential customers. You could articulate the ways in which your work sits alongside National and Local Government strategies as well as meeting the evolving needs of stakeholders as identified through high levels of insight
- 1.1.2 You have a strong understanding of the needs and preferences of your customers and continually develop and refine this in a systematic way. The assessor confirmed this during this assessment visit when discussing your work with staff, stakeholders and customers. The approaches, inputs and outcomes of each intervention are often different and tailored dependant on the customer involved. The Assessor was able to discuss this with a range of customers, partners and staff when discussing your customer journeys during this assessment
- 1.1.3 You continue to align your resources to support communities and individuals with the greatest identified needs whilst taking account of staffing challenges and the need to support customer, Local and Scottish Government objectives. This was discussed and confirmed at this assessment visit
- 1.2.1 You have a well-developed and comprehensive strategy for engaging and involving customers using a range of methods appropriate to the needs of identified customer groups. You do this in several ways through your improvement plan and your self-evaluation framework. Your method of operation is such that you operate in a very planned and evaluative way including customers and others where appropriate. The involvement of stakeholders in the ongoing planning process through consultation has become more comprehensive over the last year. You have regular customer focused meetings with Head Teachers to review their requirements and how this may be best supported

- 1.2.2 Your consultation with customers is integral to continually improving your service and you advise customers of the results and action taken. Throughout this assessment you gave numerous examples of where you have worked with stakeholders and changed your service as a result. This occurs at individual case level as well as at a more general or 'product' and service level
- 1.3.1 You continue to use and refine reliable and accurate methods to measure customer satisfaction on a regular basis. You are continuing to develop, review and improve both qualitative and quantitative measures
- 1.3.5 You have made positive changes to services because of analysing the customer experience, including improved customer journeys. Although working within a consultative framework and within Professional boundaries, through analysis of customer journeys and customer involvement you have continued to fine-tune your interventions still further to better meet the needs of stakeholders generally. There were several examples given during the assessment of this in practice
- 2.1.1 You continue to have a strong corporate commitment to customers and have advocated for customers to improve the service delivered and the outcomes for that customer
- 2.1.2 In recognising the importance of having a positive impact on achievement and attainment, you work closely with partners and customers to develop service planning and delivery in ways that are more 'joined up' and meaningful to your customers. You work with stakeholders to develop competence and capacity
- 2.1.6 You have a strong self-assessment and continuous improvement ethos that has continued to support team and individual empowerment where the customer is at the heart of service delivery. This is a significant part of your development plan. Staff confirmed a high level of empowerment and encouragement to promote and participate in the development of the service. Your Self Evaluation Framework and processes have been externally validated by Education Scotland

- 2.2.3 You evaluate commitment to customer focus for both individual staff members and the team. You have developed a multi-layered approach to this through a tailored PRD and Supervision system
- 3.4.1 You work with a range of partners to support customers and provide more effective services. Your work with the NHS Mental Health Team leading to joint consultations with customers is one example of this
- 3.4.3 Your work with the wider educational psychology community continues to support the professional enquiry and critical analysis aspects of the service. This enables you to refine your work to best support customers in an effective way
- 4.2.4 You have developed and learned from best practice identified within and outside our organisation, and you publish your examples externally where appropriate. Where probationers join your service, you benefit from their previous work experiences and learn from this through such as presentations. All staff are encouraged to take part in the annual Conference of Educational Psychologists and you often share your work and host workshops there. Education Scotland arranged a National Action Enquiry project that you were involved in and your work is now part of an Education Scotland National Improvement Hub

8. ACTION PLANNING & NEXT STEPS

The achievement of Customer Service Excellence is an ongoing activity and it is important that Aberdeenshire Educational Psychology Service continues to meet the elements of the criteria throughout the three years the hallmark is awarded for. Efforts must be made by Customer Service Excellence holders to continually improve their service.

We recommend that you develop an action plan based on the findings of this report. The action plan does not need to be a separate document and is likely to be more effective if the actions are embedded in your normal improvement and service developments plans.

We will undertake an annual review that will look at your continued compliance with the Customer Service Excellence. As part of the review we will also look at progress on any findings of the previous assessments.

In addition to reviewing progress outlined above, we will also review the services delivery, done so by following customer journeys.

For more information on the annual review please refer to our document “Building on your Customer Service Excellence success – Preparing for the annual review”.

Holders must inform SGS of any major changes in the service provision covered by the scope of the certificate. This includes reorganisation or mergers.

In addition, SGS must be informed should the certified service experience a significant increase in customer complaints or critical press coverage.

If you are in doubt at any stage, we strongly recommend contacting the Customer Service Team for advice on the significance of any service or organisational change, or issues surrounding customer complaints.

SGS will visit within the next 12 months for the annual review.

SGS recommends that Aberdeenshire Educational Psychology Service retains a copy of this report to aid continuous improvement, and as a reference document for future assessment reviews.
